Best Practices

1. Gifting of Saplings to Guests

The CFA has introduced the practice of gifting saplings to guests, who visit the campus for workshops, seminars, demonstrations and other training related matters. This eco-friendly and green initiative has been appreciated by our guests and patrons. These saplings are then planted on campus by our esteemed guest, which serve as a beautiful reminder of their association with our institution and also promotes environment consciousness among our students. A total of 25 such saplings have been planted in the CFA campus by our guests and visitors.

2. Academic Workshops

CFA has developed a unique program for students. To bring in an additional or newer dimension to their learning, workshops by subject experts are conducted by each department, as a value addition to the laid down curricula. Workshops are coordinated by subject teacher and HOD of the concerned department while resource person will be field expert or subject expert. The institute invites reputed, talented, artists' designers, and subject/ field experts from practising artist fraternity, industry experts, design experts from industry. This approach to learning enhances the teaching & learning process and benefits both the student and the faculty.
